

[EN] 05. RSS Feeds

RSS channels can be enabled on the web pages of the dLibra system. They can be used for offering such information as:

- Recently added publications – that RSS channel contains information about recently added publications. Such a channel can be created based on criteria specified by a reader (for example, publications from last week, the last ten publications, or publications added since a specific date).
- Planned publications – that RSS channel contains information about new planned publications added to the system.